

THE MYSTERIOUS LIFE OF THE HEART

- A Constellation Weekend with Bill Mannle, LMFT

at Furnace Mountain Zen Center

April 1st – 2nd, 2017

What is your deepest longing?

Are you able to find passion, love, and success, or are you paralyzed by fear?

Does the fear belong to you or are you carrying something from your family history?

What would happen if you opened your heart and faced the fear?

How would your life be different if you lived from the heart, giving and receiving love?

A kind of “living map,” Family Constellations is a unique, phenomenological approach that explores the hidden dynamics that keep us from living authentic lives. It has the potential to touch us on a deep energetic level, often healing old wounds, and leading to a transformation in our lives and the lives of those around us. This work deepens the respect for the mystery of life and the forces that shape it.

Through ritual, exercises and constellation work we will explore:

- Opening our hearts and facing our fears
- Giving and Receiving Love
- Letting go of the guilt and allowing more pleasure
- Loneliness versus solitude
- Increasing joy, humor and acceptance and creativity in our work and life
- How to unblock the primal energy flows through all of us and make deeper connections to those we love, past and present.

Spend a heart-opening weekend of personal discovery and healing. Get in touch with the primal energy that flows through all of us and make deeper connections to those we love, past and present.

The workshop will be held at the beautiful Furnace Mountain Zen Center (www.furnacemountainzen.org) in Clay City, KY approx. 1 hour from Lexington, 2 hours from Louisville, 30 min from the Red River Gorge area.

The center has limited opportunities to house participants, so if you'd like to stay on site please make sure to register early.
